Keith Bernstein - His experience and legacy in the film industry is legendary. Keith for many years has been the official Clint Eastwood on-set photographer for all his films, and is a Sony professional camera user. Some of his career highlights have not just been on screen but with Nelson Mandela and forty photographs of President Nelson Mandela are exhibited at the National Museum, Melbourne

His film work includes “A Private War”, “Sully”, “Jersey Boys” and “Mandela: Long Walk To Freedom”

Some of his awards include Nikon Press Photographer of the Year in successive years, 1995 & 1996 and Association of Photographer awards in 2002, 2003, 2004, 2008, 2011

Rob Pugh – Award Winning Photographer. During today’s live demonstrations Rob will work with his professional model Pip Atkins and demonstrate how to create amazing portraits using Speed-lights and gels. Starting with just one Speed-light he will continue to build by adding multiple lights to create the final image. After Lunch using his styled model he will show you where to position your first light and figure out what your camera settings will be. He will break all the rules by shooting at f2 and look at the details in the image. Most important he will tether his camera to the computer and demonstrate why you should also be tethered
