

KEEP MOVING STILL . . .

. . . is the aptly named title of a photographic Exhibition currently on display at the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, Barrack Road, Exeter, EX2 5DW, until 31st August 2017. The Exhibition brings together the work of five accomplished Devon photographers, all of whom are established members of the Exeter Camera Club, and who formed a small Special Interest Group, guided and inspired by John Sanders, an accomplished Dance and Visual Art photographer.

The common theme of this body of work is dance and movement and serves to illustrate the different approaches the five photographers have taken to capture a particularly difficult subject matter. Any photography involving the meaningful recording of performing artists going about their daily work routines is difficult enough but to capture both the stillness of a single instance and the vitality of movement is doubly difficult. Not only do these photographers bring into play individual technical skills but their photographs demonstrate that it is equally important to have the ability to work in collaboration with the artists themselves.

The five photographers concerned are:

Alan Bastin, Di Wilkins, David Snowden, Miranda Wood and John Sanders.

Further examples of their work can be found on their joint website at

<http://danceandmovement.co.uk>

This small group was also featured on pages 20-21-22 of Photography News. Copy and past this link into your browser <https://issuu.com/brightpublishing/docs/>

Ann Owens : WCPF Publicity Officer